ABSTRACT

The Developmental Victimization Survey (DVS), was designed to obtain one-year incidence estimates of a comprehensive range of childhood victimizations across gender, race, and developmental stage. Conducted between December 2002, and February 2003, it assessed the experiences of a nationally representative sample of children age 2-17 living in the contiguous United States.

The sample selection procedures were based on a list-assisted random digit dial (RDD) telephone survey design. A short interview was conducted with an adult caregiver (usually a parent) to obtain family demographic information. One child was randomly selected from all eligible children living in a household by selecting the child with the most recent birthday. If the selected child was 10-17 years old, the main telephone interview was conducted with the child. If the selected child was 2-9 years old, the interview was conducted with the caregiver who “is most familiar with the child’s daily routine and experiences.” Interviews were completed with 79.5% of the eligible persons contacted. All procedures were authorized by the Institutional Review Board of the University of New Hampshire.

This survey utilized the Juvenile Victimization Questionnaire (JVQ), a recently constructed inventory of childhood victimization. The JVQ obtains reports on 34 forms of offenses against youth that cover five general areas of concern: Conventional Crime, Child Maltreatment, Peer and Sibling Victimization, Sexual Assault, and Witnessing and Indirect Victimization. Follow-up questions for each screener item gathered additional information, including perpetrator characteristics, the use of a weapon, whether injury resulted, and whether the event occurred in conjunction with another screener.

The final sample represented 2,030 children age 2-17 living in the contiguous United States. Half (50%) of the sample is male; 51% are 2-9 year olds, while 49% are age 10-17. Almost 10% of the sample reported a household income of under $20,000, while about 34% had annual incomes between $20,000 and $50,000. The survey sample is 76% White (non-Hispanic), 11% Black (non-Hispanic), 9% Hispanic (any race) and 3.5% from other races including American Indian and Asian.

Purpose of the Study

This research is based on data from the Developmental Victimization Survey (DVS), designed to obtain one-year incidence estimates of a comprehensive range of childhood victimizations across gender, race, and developmental stage.

Study Design

The sample selection procedures were based on a list-assisted random digit dial (RDD) telephone survey design. . "List-assisted" dialing confines the random digit selection from telephone exchanges that have known listed phone numbers. This design increases the rate of contacting eligible respondents by decreasing the rate of dialing business and non-working numbers.

Sample

Any child 2-17 years of age at the time of survey and any household (located in the contiguous United States) with such a child were eligible to participate. The final sample represented 2,030 children age 2-17 living in the contiguous United States. Half (50%) of the sample is male; 51% are 2-9 year olds, while 49% are age 10-17. Almost 10% of the sample reported a household income of under $20,000, while about 34% had annual incomes between $20,000 and $50,000. The survey sample is 76% White (non-Hispanic), 11% Black (non-Hispanic), 9% Hispanic (any race) and 3.5% from other races including American Indian and Asian.

Data Collection Procedures

Data were collected using a CATI (Computer Assisted Telephone Interview) system, which gives interviewers questions and instructions on a computer screen, is programmed with algorithms to choose appropriate follow-ups, and prompts interviewers when out-of-range responses are encoded. The use of CATI minimizes recording errors and provides substantial quality control benefits. For this survey, only interviewers who had extensive experience interviewing children and in addressing sensitive topics were chosen.

A short interview was conducted with an adult caregiver (usually a parent) to obtain family demographic information. One child was randomly selected from all eligible children living in a household by selecting the child with the most recent birthday. If the selected child was 10-17 years old, the main telephone interview was conducted with the child. If the selected child was 2-9 years old, the interview was conducted with the caregiver who “is most familiar with the child’s daily routine and experiences.” Caregivers were interviewed as proxies for this age group because the ability of children under the age of 10 to be recruited and participate in phone interviews of this nature has not been well established (Hausman, Spivak, Prothrow-Stith, & Roeber, 1992; Waksberg, 1978), yet such children are still at an age when parents tend to be well informed about their experiences both at and away from home. In 68% of these caretaker interviews, the caretaker was the biological mother, in 24% the biological father, and in 8% some other relative or caretaker.

Up to 13 callbacks were made to select and contact a respondent and up to 25 callbacks were made to complete the interview. Consent was obtained prior to the interview.

Response Rates

Cooperation rate is 79.5% of eligible persons contacted.

Response rate on standard guidelines (American Assoc. Public Opinion Research 2004) is 41%. (majority "non-respondents" were households with no answer after up to 25 call attempts)

Sources of Information

Telephone interviews only:

- Household/demographic data from adult caregiver
- Child measures for 2-9 year-olds from primary adult caregiver
- Child measures for 10-17 year-olds from child self-report

JUVENILE VICTIMIZATION QUESTIONNAIRE (JVQ):

Crimes against Children Research Center, University of New Hampshire.(Hamby & Finkelhor, 2001; Hamby, Finkelhor, Ormrod, & Turner, 2004)

An inventory of childhood victimization. The instrument covers a wide range of events, including non-violent victimizations and events that children and parents do not typically conceptualize as crimes. The JVQ obtains reports on 34 forms of offenses against youth that cover five general areas of concern: Conventional Crime, Child Maltreatment, Peer and Sibling Victimization, Sexual Assault, and Witnessing and Indirect Victimization. The use of simple language and behaviorally specific questions clearly define the types of incidents that children should report. The JVQ is appropriate for self-report by children as young as age 8. The caregiver version, designed for proxy interviews with even younger children, uses wording very similar to the self-report questionnaire, allowing for direct comparability of items across the two versions. Therefore, unlike other victimization instruments, the JVQ permits direct comparisons of victimization experiences across the full range of childhood and adolescence.

Analytic Considerations

Using 2002 Census estimates, (U.S. Census Bureau, 2000) investigators applied post-stratification weights to adjust for race proportion differences between our sample and national statistics. It should be noted that, since interviews were conducted in English only, this weighting procedure can only increase representation among English speaking Hispanics. The investigators also applied weights to adjust for within household probability of selection due to variation in the number of eligible children across households and the fact that the experiences of only one child per household were included in the study.

Some of the component weighting variables (rceth_wt, hh_wght, pop_wght) were included with the data just to provide transparency for any user who would like to see how the final weights were derived. For the typical user the weights of interest are tot_wght (total weight) and scl_wght (scaled weight). Tot_wght would be used to project national estimates in terms of numbers or rates of victimization (as of 2002). Scl_wght would be used for significance testing of weighted data to maintain appropriate n's (scaled weights are directly proportional to total weights, but sum to n = 2,027, the approximate sample size).

Race/Ethnicity Weight (rceth_wt): post-stratification weights computed to adjust for under-sampling of Black and Hispanic children. Based on July, 2002, census estimates.

Household Weight (hh_wght): child household sampling weight computed to adjust for number of eligible children in a household (only one child chosen per household).

Population Weight (pop_wght): multiplier to equate sample total to national child population total. Based on July, 2002, census estimates.

Total Weight (tot_wght): combination of three previous weights.

Scaled Weight (scl_wght): total weight scaled to sum to sample total; for use in significance testing to maintain appropriate n's.

CH anger score (sum)

"child" anger score (TSCYC) (for sample sub-set age 2-9 yrs)

Processing summary: TSCC and TSCYC items are "QG" & "QKG" variables in the DVS. Responses are coded 1 – 4. However, the original TSCC/TSCYC instruments code responses 0 – 3. DVS trauma symptom scores were calculated in two stages. First, a simple sum of valid responses was calculated. Then, these sums were adjusted to reflect the original coding range (0 – 3). Cases were screened to determine whether they met the instrument's threshold for missing cases. Only qualified cases have a score. For qualified cases, missing values were replaced with the case's mean score.

1810	c1_incd incident # case-specific incident numbers for each endorsed past year screener item. Some screeners identify different types of victimizations that occurred at the same time and place (same incident). This variable records an incident number for each endorsed victimization, using the same number for all victimizations that occurred in the same incident. The first endorsed victimization in the screener sequence is assigned incident number 1, with each subsequent independent endorsed screener receiving the next sequential incident number. The maximum number of incidents for any case in this data file is 15. Incident numbers are necessary for tracing information gathered in screener follow-up questions. Follow-up questions are asked only once per incident. When a subsequently endorsed victimization screener is part of a previously identified incident, follow-up questions are not repeated; that information must be obtained from the previous screener follow-ups. The procedure for identifying incidents numbers is complex and not included here. Syntax is available upon request.	Screener Incident Numbers	F3	19812-19819
